Young Cook's Guide.
A good rule for a young housekeeper in cooking vegetables is that all vegetables that grow above the ground should be put on to cook in boiling water; all that grow below the ground, except new potatoes, in cold water.
To Serve With Panache.
Lemon, juice and powdered sugar are delicious with feathery wheat pancake. It is said that the Kaiser is especially attached to this dish.

Caught in Belting.
Last Friday while working in his shop Mr. Robert Marks came near being killed in his machinery. His clothing became entangled in a fast moving belt and was drawing him into the machine. Being a very strong man he pulled back, tearing his clothing from his body, releasing himself. However before he was able to do this he had suffered a broken arm. His injuries were treated and he is now on the road to recovery.

ing note at the door of Mrs. Allen county the case was transferred, was tried and resulted in a fine of $200 and 3 months in jail.

Quite a number of misde-

Butter and Cheese.
Good butter has no strong odor. It is of an even, golden yellow and has a fine grain; if slick it has not been properly handled. It should never be marbled in appearance. If there is too great proportion of moisture present the butter breaks easily. In the case of the purchaser pass for the water.
Cheese should be of good color, dependent on the variety and of fine grain. The cheese with large air cells is usually not of the best quality; if it is separated from the body of the cheese rapidly it usually indicates the addition of foreign fat.

Potato Balls.
"Take equal parts of cold boiled potatoes and raw onion. Peel and grate the raw onion and squeeze out the juice; now grate the boiled potatoes and mix with the raw; add salt, four tablespoons of butter and have ready little squares of bread, browned in butter; take two heaping tablespoons of potatoes and put two or three squares of bread in center; now form in balls with hands; drop in boiling salted water and boil fifteen minutes.
Good with any kind of gravy and meat."

Pest Can Live on Atmosphere.
Some of the dull, stolid minds of the world are sometimes at loss to know how the seemingly impenetrable pest can live on what appears to be a very meagre income. Stupid things!
They have not the comprehension and fellowship imagination to perceive that the true hand can warm himself by his own poetic fire and secure his food and drink from his misce-Pertan springs.

PRESERVE FOES' HEADS
SOUTH AMERICAN TRIBE THAT
EMBALMS THE TROPHIES.
Method Employed Reduces the Grizzly Bear to the Size of a Billiard Ball With Changing or Mutating Features.
The little-known Indian tribes that inhabit the more distant provinces of the South American republic of Brazil, in almost entire independence, have a strange custom of preparing a number which reduces them to extremely small dimensions, without distorting or mutilating the features.
For years a war of extermination has been going on between the various tribes. Ambushes and night attacks are of frequent occurrence, and the parties often march dozens of leagues to surprise their enemies.
The head of the vanquished chief is cut off and becomes the most esteemed trophy of the victorious leader. It is then, in due time, desiccated and reduced by the latter by means of a process, the secret of which has so far been jealously guarded. As far as is known, the skull, jawbones and fleshy parts are entirely removed without the least damage, and the only trace of the operation is a small incision in the shape of the neck which is afterward sewn together again.
After removal of the bones and softer parts of the skull the skin is filled with hot stones and a vegetable concoction, which exerts and makes remain in the process, is carefully guarded. This process is continued until the head shrinks to the dimensions of a billiard ball and has become as dry and tough as a sole leather.
It is remarkable that during the process neither the natural color of the hair nor its quantity is diminished, but even the eyelids and lashes remain in place, and that even the grain of the skin with the fine hairs are plainly discernible after the preparation is completed.
The process lasts about one year, and the head during that time hangs in smoke, for which purpose a stout string is drawn through the upper part of it. The lips are sewed together in order to prevent the dead enemy from speaking and eating, and the long tongue by which it is used remains attached and hanging from the mouth.
The trophy, which by the reduction has lost its ghastliness, is kept in a niche in the wall of the chief, stuck on the end of a spear. During the three years succeeding the killing, feasts, lasted three days, are held on the anniversaries of the victory, during which the trophy is exhibited and After three years the victim may dispose of trophy in any way he desires, but this is rarely done as the head forms a war trophy of the highest honor.
Case of Poetic Justice.
That was a case of poetic justice when a jury of women in San Francisco were called upon to decide the fit of a man's clothes. A certain tallar in that western city sued a customer for money due for clothes. The customer claimed that the suits did not fit and asked for a jury of women to decide the matter. The jury was 12 good women and true, who from their own experience were no doubt thoroughly qualified to pass on the fit of clothes, found for the defendant.
It must have afforded him infinite satisfaction to know that, after all the sarcasm with which his husbands treated their own troubles with dressmakers, their exasperating experiences should be to the end be drawn upon to render a lawful judgment on clothes worn by men. All the fun poked at women and their dressmakers in San Francisco and all the jokes directed to that engaging theme have been recalled.
Book Doves.
Good books are treasures, and they should be handled with the greatest care by everyone. Here are a few rules by which they should be treated.
Never drop a book upon the floor.
Never turn loose a book from the thumb.
Never lean or rest upon an open book.
Never turn down the corners of leaves.
Never touch a book with soiled or dirty hands.
Always place a large book upon a table before opening it.
Never pull a book from the shelf by the binding at the top, but by the back.
Never close a book with a pencil, tablet or anything else that is bulky between the leaves.
Apt Description.
A little girl four years old in trying to describe to her mother what she had seen, said: "I don't know the man with the jewelry in his teeth!" World Accepts One's Own Valuation.
Every man stamps his value on himself; the price he challenges for himself is given us—Bullier.
